THE SPIRIT OF ANARCHY.

Every citizen of Utah who desires the welfare of the State will set himself equarely and firmly against everything that is in the nature of mob rule. There is sufficient security for the citizens of this great nation in that civilized weapon called the ballot. It places all upon a plane of equality in that respect. No one need use the influence he wields by the ballot for any person or project' against his own will.

He who sells his vote for any purpose or to any individual, company or assoclation, whether for political or other purposes, is totally unfit for citizenship and ought to be deprived of all its privileges. Any person who attempts to use coercion, intimidation or force of any kind to induce or compel a citizen to vote or not to vote in a given direction, whether it be at the polls or in some official position or capacity, is to be classed in the same category as the mercenary who sells or barters his bal-

In this city there have been open threats held up to deter men in public office from doing that which they consider right and just and for the public welfare. Newspapers have actually invited mobocracy, with suggestions of violence towards members of the City Council, if they dared to act in opposition to the dictates of certain schemers, who have set themselves to the task of villifying and injuring a company doing business in this city which has been of great public benefit. "Tar and feathers" and "ropes with hangman's nooses attached" are among the measures advocated, and crowds have been urged to flock into the council chamber so as to overawe members who are not to be swayed by the malcontents and advocates of mob rule, That which has been proposed by those papers and which they have declared was suggested by a member of the council, is nothing less than anarchy. It is positive evidence of the weakness of the cause that prompted it. The supporters of violence in the place of reason, and of mob rule in the place of just consideration of both sides & the subject, are unworthy of the conftdence and indeed of the serious notice of rational people. Yet it becomes necessary to point out the outrageous methods which they would inaugurate and the malicious and anarchistic spirit by which they are actuated.

We do not think that this city is in any real danger from those firebrands and would-be destroyers of the reputation, property and lives of honorable men and worthy institutions. There are too many of our stable, thoughtful and peace-loving people to permit such outrages as those evil-minded plotters would perpetrate if they had the power, This community may put up with the daily libels concocted by the hirelings of disappointed politicians and ambitious office seekers, whose names are synonyms for everything that is disreputable and vile, and may smile at their efforts to cast odium upon respectable citizens, but they will not suffer the desires of those agitators to materialize in mob rule or go on to the culmination which such anarchists would like to reach.

The very mention of such means as have been suggested to prevent public officials from acting according to their Individual judgment in matters that pertain to the public welfare, should arouse the resentment of every lawabiding person, with a determination to resist, and if necessary trample upon and subdue, every attempt to precipitate the state of affairs binted at and advised by the firebrands who wish to rule or rule.

That there are two sides at least to every public question no rational person would dispute. That intense feeling is something quite natural on either side of public measures will also be conceded. But in no case is it necessary or right to invoke physical force or hold opponents in terrorem, in order to accomplish a scheme or defeat a measure; and when it is proposed, It affords proof positive that its promoters are in the wrong and that their position is not only untenable but des.

There are no words in the English language too strong to denounce the in the spirit of anurchy, which have rough element of Salt Lake City within the past few days and weeks. Lat surrounded by a City of Peace, an ideal such mad counsels prevail in one in stance, and the fires of mobocracy would be kindled and there is no telling what ruin would be the result.

THE GREAT MENACE.

The condition of affairs in Chicago, as detailed in the dispatches from that ity, should prove a warning to the entire country against the prevalence of societies that employ lawlessness and physical force in their endeavors to accomplish their purposes. When public traffic is stopped, when stees are prevented from delivering goods to purchasers' homes, when men are clubbed and stabbed, when even ladies are seized in the street and hindered from entering a vehicle, and these criminal outrages are dictated by an organization called a union, it is time that some aggressive measures should be introduced, for acting merely on the defensive will not reach the root of the evil

We do not believe that any of the adocates of law and order throughout the country would attempt to prevent working people from forming associations and societies to better their condition, financially, morally or intellectually. The right of every person to de. mand a certain price for his labor and to decline working on other terms is generally conceded. It is also admitted that working people may combine to effect the purposes they have in view. The trouble begins when they attempt RALT LAKE CITY. - MAY 3, 1905. to accomplish by force or any unlawful means that which they wish to accom-

It is strange that such societies as lave been organized, ostensibly for the benefit of laboring people, seem to ignore the rights of persons who do not coincide with their views and intents. and attempt to accomplish by force that which they cannot effect by reason. In all the great strikes that have occurred. this recognition of the rights of others has failed to appear in the course pursued by the unions. They despise that which they deem to be oppression and injustice on the part of employers, and yet they proceed to exercise the most unbearable tyranny towards working people who do not choose to join them in their schemes and warfare against

The rights of labor are not all comprehended in the rules and methods of labor unions. Every man and woman possesses the right to remain outside of my society, no matter what it may be called or what may be its object. They must be protected in their rights and in their liberties. If they choose to work for a given wage or for a certain number of hours per day, that is their undoubted right, and no person or soclety should be permitted to prevent its

If necessary, the entire power of local and even national government should be called into action to preserve the rights and privileges of citizens of this Republic. Let working people combine as they choose for their own benefit and advancement, but let them keep their hands off the persons and property of others who do not wish to join with them either in their opinions or their associations. This will have to be maintained no matter what may be the consequence.

AN INTERNATIONAL CITY.

Two representatives from Holland are said to have come to this country for the purpose of asking Mr. Carnegie to donate $20,000,000 with which to build a city near the Hague, as a monument to "peace, humanity, truth, and the arts." The Dutch government, it is thought, encourages this scheme, because it hopes, by making Holland the neeting-place of international gatherings, to render it safe from German aggression

The idea itself, to build an international city devoted to the highest ideals of our civilization, must commend itself to every advanced thinker. But Holland is not the place for it. European politics are too uncertain. The affairs of the nations on the continent are too entangled. No one can foresec what will happen next. Will the revclutionary forces of Russia boil over and flow in all directions? Will the Balkan volcano, long smoking and rumbling, beich forth its destructive contents? Will the "yellow peril" take definite form? Who can tell whether, once more, monuments of civilization will not be leveled and burted in rulns. as happened during the inundations of Saracenes and Turks, before the final adjustment of the affairs of nations? At all events, Europe is not the place

Nor should it, if it is to be international, owe its existence to the bounty of one man, or one government. I should be erected by the voluntary contributious of the millions who, in all nations are praying and working for the coming of the heavenly kingdom. as were Simeon and Anna, in their day, for the advent of the Prince of Peace. It would stand for more, if it owed its existence to the small contributions of 20,000,000 men and women of all nations and tongues, than if it rose on the flat of a commander of countless millions of dollars. The United States is the country where such a monument to an advanced civilization should stand, for the simple reason that the Almighty has given to this nation the mission of leading the advance. From here the gospel of freedom is being prolaimed to all the world. Here the oppressed have found an asylum, and city of refuge. There is not a government upon the face of the earth, under whose banner the principles of freedom and the rights of man are as safe as under the American flag. Here, then, is the site for a monument to the triumph of those principles. The Hague has been designated as the meeting place of the international tribunal created by the Peace congress in 1899. A peace palace is to be erected there, through the generosity of Mr. Carnegie, But the tribunal is not bound to always meet there. It can hold its sessions in whatever country the litigants may prefer. It is conceivable that cases may arise in which infamy of the suggestions and urgings it would be best to have the hearing in this country. For that reason a peace been offered in public print to the palace should be erected here, in the western hemisphere, and it might be city, and a pattern to all countries and future generations.

FREEDOM IN RUSSIA

There is said to be great rejoicing in Russia on account of the religious liberty just proclaimed by the Czar. It is not perfect liberty. Still, it is a step forward. The advance has commenced.

Perhaps the most important concession is that which grants to members of the established church the liberty to leave it, and accept the creed of dissenters. In any despotic country the state church is the staff and the instrument of tyranny. It is a political much more than a spiritual influence. It generally is the servant and the apologist of wrongdoing. When liberty is accorded to leave it, it cannot maintain itself as the instrument of tyranny. Consequently tyranny itself is deprived of much of its power over the destiny of men. Religious liberty is a long step towar i political freedom. In this connection a circumstance that has come to our notice may be worth relating. About eighteen or nineteen years ago, a boy was born in this city, whose father was impressed to give him a Russian name. He called him Ivan, the Russian for John. The reason for this was that he thought that by the time this boy was old enough to go on a mission, Russia would in all probability be opened to the messengers of the Gospel. In the hope that this might be the case, he gave his son what may now be almost called a prophetic name. For, a short time ago Ivan was called to take a mission, and now comes the proclamation of religious freedom in Russia.

According to a bulletin received, the forty-fourth annual convention of the National Educational Association will be held at Asbury Park and Queen Grove, N. J., from July 3 to 7, this year. One of the great features of this gathering is an address by the President on July 7. By special arrangements the delegates will be able to visit many points of interest, under the auspices of the Teachers' Association of New York, with Columbia and New York universities co-operating.

OUR NAVIES.

Sacramento Bee.

Are our big navies practically worthless considering the hundreds of mil-lions spent upon them. The London Graphic declares the new guns on British men-of-war are on the verge of de-crepitude; that experiments have forty charges, although the minimum life is supposed to be from 150 to 200 charges; and that, with the practice firing already done, twenty minutes fighting would compel all the new battleships to turn tail. If these marvefous modern improvements keep on, the modern battleship may soon become more dangerous to itself than to the enemy.

MAN WITHOUT AN ENEMY.

Centralia (Mo.) Courier. Centralia (Mo.) Courier.

You have no enemies. Then you have never dared to stand up for the right against wrong, you have never protected the weak against a buily, you have never even dared to defend your own rights against oppression. Had you done any of these things you would have made enemies. Even if you had done none of these things, but simply achieved a little more success in your business than did your neighbor, you would have an enemy, for failure always hates success. The man who has no enemies should be ashamed of it.

Earrings were never made for cows, but every cow in Belgium must wear them now, for a regulation has been issued that all animals of the boving species are to be thus adorned on reaching the age of three months. This is a hygienic measure intended to prevent the introduction into Belgium of animals suffering from tuberculosis. Breeders are obliged to keep a strict account of the animals raised by them, and the ring, on which is engraved a number, is fastened in the animals ear for the purpose of preventing the substitution of one animal for another.

The engineers have discovered that the geologists were entirely at fault as to the temperature which would be encountered, missing the mark twenty-five degrees at the point where hot water was found. The water conditions in general were unlike those predicted, and the engineers found that the dips in the rock strata, which had been declared on theory to be mainly vertical, were, in fact, horizontal.
